Introduction

Halloween is still a month from now and yet Android users are already being haunted by the previously reported "Ghost Push" malware, which roots devices and makes them download unwanted ads and apps. The malware is usually packaged with apps that users may download from third-party app stores.

Further investigation of Ghost Push revealed more recent variants, which, unlike older ones, employ the following routines that make them harder to remove and detect. Customers using Trend Micro mobile solutions are protected from threats related to Ghost Push as we have been blocking and monitoring related malware since April this year. Below are the IOCs for the related threats.
